As his running mate

Nominee Carter selects Mondale

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter today designated Sen. Walter F. Mondale as his running mate. Carter's choice will be ratified tonight at the closing session of the Democratic National Convention.

Carter, named Wednesday night as the Democratic presidential candidate, said he had found "a compatibility" between the Minnesota senator and himself.

Carter entered the Royal Ballroom at the Americana Hotel shortly after 10 a.m., EDT, and told waiting newsmen that "I've decided to accept the nomination for President and...I've asked to serve as my running mate, if the delegates will approve, Sen. Walter Mondale."

Carter described Mondale as "the best person to lead this country if something should happen to me."

"I feel completely compatible with Sen. Mondale," he added.

Mondale, added Carter "has a very clear concept of what the presidency should be."

Carter won the nomination Wednesday night. He received 2,468,5 votes on the first and only ballot, well over the 1,505 needed for nomination.

After the formality of the roll call, the convention voted to deliver the nomination by acclamation. James Earl Carter Jr., 51, had defeated 14 rivals to clinch the nomination.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, who battled throughout the primary season but released his delegates before the roll call, finished second with 329.5 votes. California Gov. Edmund G.

Brown Jr., who entered late into the contest but beat Carter in several primaries, got 70.5.

Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey offered Carter in nomination as "a leader with a vision" who would return the party to the White House for the first time since Republican Richard Nixon beat the Democratic nominee, Hubert H. Humphrey, in 1968.

"My friends," Rodino said, "these are no ordinary times, and we cannot settle in these times for an ordinary leader."

The only note of disharmony for this preprogrammed convention came Wednesday night, when the Democrats were denounced as the party of abortion in a nominating speech for anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack of suburban Long Island.

Mrs. McCormack received 22 votes from among the 3,008 cast.

The antiabortion forces have been expressing their anger since the party platform drafted in Washington last month included a plank opposing a constitutional amendment to outlaw abortion.

Udall allowed his name to go into nomination in deference to his supporters but then released his delegates and endorsed Carter.

After freeing his delegates, Udall told the convention he was enlisting "as a soldier in the Carter camp."

Brown's name was entered in nomination by United Farm Workers Union leader Cesar Chavez, but Brown released his delegate votes to Carter after the convention roll call.

With the nomination secured well in advance of the convention, Carter used the intervening time for one of the most methodical searches for a running mate ever conducted by a potential presidential nominee.

Carter asked prominent Democrats and other national leaders to suggest names for a list from which to draw a vice presidential nominee. He began with a list of 14 and narrowed that to seven finalists.

Each of the seven submitted financial records which were reviewed by an accounting firm. Each also rendered a full medical report from his personal physician. Carter said this week just before his choice was made that nothing in the reports raised any serious problems.

Carter also conducted personal interviews with each of the seven, meeting with some at the Carter home in Plains, Ga., and others at his convention suite in a Manhattan hotel.

Rodino, one of the seven, withdrew from the running Monday, citing a glaucoma condition which might make him a campaigning liability.

Lobbying for the other six continued at various levels of intensity. Muskie was pushed by some as a lure for the Catholic vote, alienated by the abortion issue. He also was offered as a lure for a portion of the liberal wing suspicious of Carter's Southern background.

Mondale was recommended by those wanting to court liberal support, particularly from Humphrey followers. Glenn, the first U.S. astronaut to orbit the earth, had the advantage of coming from one of the big states needed for an electoral college victory in November.

Carter continued to receive advice up to the last minute. A group of governors called on him Wednesday to offer their "input," although they said after the meeting they pushed no particular candidate.

Car sinks as pavement collapses

A jolting experience

It was perhaps a "jolting" experience for an auto parked in the municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street Wednesday evening as the pavement collapsed.

The pavement under the left wheel of a station wagon belonging to James A. Bonner, of Jamestown, gave way at approximately 5 p.m. Wednesday, causing the left side of the vehicle to sink into a newly-created hole, Washington C.H. police officers reported.

There was no damage reported to the car, and the hole, approximately four feet deep, was filled in with gravel by the Washington C.H. Street Department. A wrecker was required to remove the auto from the hole.

PAVEMENT COLLAPSES — The pavement suddenly gave way as this car was parked at a parking space Wednesday afternoon in the Municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street.

Seeking more gusto out of life

Simpson to resign as judge

By GEORGE MALEK

"You only go around once in life" is not only the opening to a beer commercial, but also the philosophy of Washington C.H. Municipal Court Judge Robert L. Simpson.

Simpson, 825 Lincoln Drive, has decided to grab all the gusto he can by leaving his position in the Washington C.H. community for Florida. The judge is resigning his post on the Washington C.H. Municipal Court bench as of July 30.

Leaving the security of a four-year judgeship which began in January, Simpson has not yet decided where he will accept a position. He said he is considering several possibilities and expects to make a firm commitment before leaving in the first week of August.

Having completed master's degree work in the somewhat obscure field of international law, Simpson says he sees his specialty blossoming into an important facet of the legal profession. He wants to try his talents in this infant field but feels he'll have no chance to do so in Washington C.H.

He admits he could be wrong, and the trip could be a complete failure. However, Simpson feels if he doesn't take the plunge soon, it may soon be too late. He is now 36 years old.

Simpson was tempted to gamble four years ago while working on his master's degree at the University of Miami. He considered his own practice in the Miami area, but then took the safer course of coming to Washington C.H. to join former Fayette County prosecuting attorney Otis R. Hess Jr., in partnership.

The goal of his master's thesis was to demonstrate that a qualified attorney who was not a citizen of the United States should be allowed to practice before American courts. An unpopular topic with fellow attorneys who were not seeking additional competition from foreigners, it remained dormant in his notes when he came to join Hess.

Now, Simpson says, Florida and other states are adopting the attitude he could have presented before it became popular. The judge says he waited too long.

ROBERT L. SIMPSON

"I could have been a leader in this field," he muses.

College roommates at the University of Cincinnati Hess and Simpson once considered constructing an open air theatre. He has volumes of notes on their ideas for such a structure, but the group never took any action. An open-air theatre which now stands on the site they selected has continuously made money and is lengthening its season.

"I've had some great ideas, but never carried them out," Simpson says. He is about to change all that, even with the risk of ending up with egg on his face.

The judge expresses regret over leaving Washington C.H. which he says has been extremely good to him. Opportunities he never anticipated have come his way here, and he feels, in a way, that he is deserting many good friends.

At 36, he feels he can't wait any longer to test his belief that international law is the coming thing. Miami, Fla., office headquarters for several international firms, provides excellent contacts in the field.

Although New York or Washington D.C. might have a slight edge, Simpson has a license to practice in Florida because he took the bar examination while in school there.

American trade with other nations is rapidly increasing, and Simpson is sure there will soon be a demand for international law specialists. International contracts are being signed in growing numbers, and he would like to get in on the ground floor as the legal field expands with it.

Although four years may not seem like a long time, Simpson said it is the longest he has remained in one city since graduating from law school in 1964. In the ensuing years, he has lived in nearly a dozen cities, and has liked Washington C.H. by far the best.

Since coming here, Simpson has served as assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney, president of the Fayette County Bar Association, and now as municipal court judge. He has been active in a wealth of civic and social organizations.

He says that he and his wife, Janette, have been made to feel more welcome than he thought possible. They and their four children have enjoyed a comfortable life style here.

Simpson adds that he hates to leave the programs he has begun in municipal court and hopes some of them will continue. He feels his goal of aiding the offender right himself rather than fining him to death can be achieved.

He has made his resignation known to the Ohio Supreme Court and at the same time recommended that the judgeship here be made a full-time position.

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes will appoint a successor to fill his unexpired term, and it appears that former Fayette County Common Pleas Court Judge John P. Case is the frontrunner.

Simpson said the decision to leave did not come easily, but the opportunities which have presented themselves in Florida were too enticing to be cast aside.

Although the ones Simpson seems to be most interested in pursuing are the least secure, they offer him the chance to test his imagination, and he's afraid opportunity may not pass his way again.

Separate meters authorized

Sewer bill procedure approved by Council

By GEORGE MALEK

After several months of discussions, Washington C.H. City Council Wednesday night took the first firm action toward establishing a sewer billing procedure which makes allowances for non-sewer water use.

Council decided by a 4-2 margin to allow homeowners to install a separate water meter on their outside faucet. Those who fill swimming pools, water lawns, or feel that for some other reason they have excessive water usage which does not enter into the sewer system, may meter such flow and have it deducted from their sewage bills.

Although details of the actual application have not been worked out, the cost will of the meter and installation will be the responsibility of the homeowner. The installer would also pay a surcharge for occasional reading of the meter.

Council did not set a specific fee for the readings or the exact time period between readings. There was also no discussion of the rate per cubic foot of the deductions to be made.

The city governing body also indicated that Washington C.H. residents using waters would be charged a flat fee per month for sewage use. The monthly rate will be based on the number of persons in the household. The fee was not established during the meeting.

Council member Mrs. Bertha McCullough suggested that a sewer billing committee be established to review in needs for relief of individual commercial and industrial concerns, but the topic of discussion changed without any significant reaction from Council.

FIVE ORDINANCES were approved by City Council. One of these was the final reading of the sewer tappers measure. After considerable discussion, Council decided the city should continue to tap sewers as well as making provision for private plumbers to tap the sewer.

Council decided, however, that the $75 maximum charge for taps by the city was completely unreasonable. City Manager George H. Shaper pointed out that the cost of equipment, labor and materials for even the most simple tap was $85. More complicated taps might cost more than $100, he indicated.

Therefore, Council members established a charge of $100 for labor and materials in addition to the $25 permit fee. The individual desiring the tap must also pay for the necessary sewer tile, dig to the main sewer and provide backfill.

A sewer use ordinance was passed following its third reading. The ordinance states that all city residents must use the city sewer system, and outlines the types of sewage which are deemed acceptable. If industrial sewage is not acceptable, it must be pre-treated.

Also passed on their third and final reading were ordinances amending the penalty clause for companies which do not withhold city income tax from employees and render it to the city, and an ordinance vacating platted sections of Wilson and Campbell streets which have never actually been constructed.

An emergency measure authorizing the city manager to proceed with the city's proposed plan to install new traffic signal devices was unanimously approved. The three-readings rule was suspended.

TWO RESOLUTIONS were approved. One confirmed the city manager's appointment of Ben Wright, 12 Hali Drive, to the Washington C.H. City Board of Zoning Appeals. The other authorized the city manager to grant the Tanner Oil Co. permission to cut two 35-foot curbs for the station at the corner of Elm and Center streets.

Council approved a motion by John Morris authorizing the city to engage a Columbus attorney to prosecute in the city's behalf in its case of alleged petition fraud. City solicitor Gary D. Smith had formerly handled legal work for one of the five defendants in the case dealing with income tax repeal petitions, and he sought to be removed from the case.

There was consensus agreement with City Council member Ralph L. Cook that the Washington C.H. Jaycees should be commended by Council for its outstanding effort in preparing the Independence Day celebration. A letter to that effect will be sent to that organization.

Council member Eddie Fisher once again moved that Council direct the city manager to begin turning on the street lights even if it meant borrowing money against the voted 1977 millage. The measure was defeated by a 4-3 margin.

GOP sees good race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Republican national chairwoman Mary Louise Smith says she was happy that Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter had chosen Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota as his running mate in the November election.

She said the selection "makes a good ticket for us to run against. There is a lot of vulnerability there, and we intend to make the most of it."

The party leader, here to address a Republican women's organization, said she thinks Carter's choice goes toward establishing his identity for voters.

"He's turning back to the Washington scene and the things he ran against," she said.

Reagan seeks Pennsylvania votes

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for Pennsylvania today in search of uncommitted delegates after getting a friendly welcome in New Jersey from about 50 delegates supporting President Ford.

The former California governor told a meeting of Republican delegates from New Jersey and Delaware — all of them publicly uncommitted or pledged to Ford — reasons he thinks he has a better chance of defeating Democrat Jimmy Carter in November.

Carter was nominated Wednesday night at the Democratic National Convention in New York.

Reagan was warmly received and applause was heard several times from the closed hotel conference room where he met the delegates. But there were no announcements of any new Reagan support.

But the chairman of the Ford campaign in New Jersey said Reagan made a good impression. He conceded to Reagan five to seven delegates in what previously had been considered a 67 to 0 Ford slate.

After meeting the entire delegation at a reception, Reagan had a private dinner with six New Jersey delegates.

Today, Reagan planned a similar series of private meetings with uncommitted and Ford delegates in Harrisburg, Pa., another state where Ford holds a lopsided majority.

Ford leads Reagan nationally 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the nomination, according to an Associated Press survey.

Ford has the edge in Pennsylvania by a 72 to 5 margin, with 25 uncommitted delegates and one backing Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee for president.

Again Wednesday, Reagan predicted victory. But he said he is sure the nomination will not be locked up by either himself or Ford before the GOP convention convenes Aug. 16 in Kansas City.

In a brief Newark news conference, Reagan placed unusually strong emphasis on his lack of interest in the second spot on a Ford ticket.

"Under no circumstances whatsoever will I accept the vice presidential nomination," Reagan said.

After meeting with Reagan, Thomas Kean, Ford's campaign chairman in New Jersey, was friendly toward the challenger.

"I think a number of people like him, and they like him even more after today. But it won't change their votes," said Kean, who predicted a New Jersey split of 60 to 7 or 62 to 5 in Ford's favor.

Most of the delegates interviewed by reporters after the meetings said they were impressed by Reagan, but that they hadn't switched.

Reagan described his talk with the Ford delegates briefly, "I simply talked about the record in California and my views on electability — that I am more electable."

Drew Lewis, Ford's chairman in Pennsylvania, predicted Reagan would come away with no more than eight delegates today, and no more than 11 by convention time, for a 91 to 11 Ford edge.

Reagan's press secretary, Jim Lake, said those figures were "not unreasonable."

Arbitrator nixes postal speedup

WASHINGTON (AP) — An arbitrator's ruling may halt a plan designed to save the financially ailing Postal Service hundreds of millions of dollars each year by improving employee productivity.

"This is an outstanding victory," said Mozart Ratner, attorney for the letter carriers' union, which contends the efficiency plan amounts to a speed-up.

A Postal Service spokesman declined to comment Wednesday. The service earlier had estimated it could cut its work force and save $300 million a year by using the plan.

The ruling came in a dispute over a program first tested in Kokomo, Ind., in which computers were used to redraw delivery routes to insure that every mailman has eight hours of work per day.

Arbitrator Sylvester Garrett agreed with the union that the "Kokomo plan" as implemented in Portland, Ore., requires letter carriers to work too much overtime.

Postal and union officials agreed to submit the plan to arbitration after the union challenged its legality. Garrett is expected to issue a more thorough opinion of the plan later.

The Postal Service lost a record $1.4 billion the last fiscal year and expects to lose $1 billion more in the coming fiscal year unless it wins new federal subsidies. Postal officials devised the plan to cut labor costs, which are 86 per cent of the postal budget.

Postal Service lawyer Eugene B. Granof has estimated the plan would cut the number of letter carriers by 16,000 from the present 200,000 without hurting service, saving close to $300 million per year.

Union president James Rademacher said postal management wants to reduce the work force by expanding overtime. "That way they don't have to pay fringe benefits to as many people," he said.

After eight months of the plan in Portland, "it is unreasonable to continue to require individual carriers to work more than eight hours per day repetitively where this is likely to have an adverse impact on their health," Garrett said.

He ordered the Postal Service to limit overtime to 90 minutes per week for any carrier in the Portland postal station under challenge.

His ruling does not address a Postal Service proposal to use the plan nationally, which will be the subject of other legal briefs.

However, Garrett said Portland results "are of great significance" in evaluating whether the national plan violates a contract provision requiring "fair, reasonable and equitable" work rules.

Ratner said, "If it is illegal to require people to work that many hours per day in Portland, then it is illegal anywhere else."

The union voted two years ago to call a nationwide mail strike if the plan were ever put into effect across the country.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, continuing the neutral trend that set in Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped more than a point in the early going. But advances took a 4-5 lead over declines in the overall call of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was fairly active. Analysts said the market seemed to be waiting for some fresh stimulus to get it moving in one direction or the other.

International Business Machines, which reported a strong second quarter earnings gain Wednesday, climbed 2 1/2 to 278 1/2 in early activity today.

On Wednesday The Dow Jones industrial average slipped .90 to 1,005.16.

But gainers outpaced losers by about a 3-2 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index added .18 to 56.61.

Big Board volume came to 23.84 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .11 at 107.05.

MIT ends training

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Massachusetts Institute of Technology has ended a program of training engineers from Taiwan because, a federal government official says, the State Department feared they could learn to build missiles that could be used against mainland China.

The $917,000 program, paid for by the National Taiwan University, began in January 1975 to teach 15 engineers to design and produce aircraft navigation systems. The program ended in June, six months ahead of schedule.

Thomas F. Jones, MIT's vice president for research, said he was told by the State Department's Munitions Control Office that the project "would not be in furtherance of the foreign policy and national security objectives of the United States."

The government official, who asked not to be identified, said the reason the government recommended dropping the program was because it might help Taiwan develop a missile guidance system.

He would not comment directly on the State Department's opposition. William B. Robinson, head of the Munitions Control Office, declined comment.

Turnpike chief Schocknessy dies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — James W. Schocknessy, outspoken guardian of the Ohio Turnpike since its inception in 1949 and a virtual political institution in the state, died Thursday. He was 69.

Schocknessy died in University Hospital at 6:30 a.m. from complications of cancer.

He was operated on for cancer on March 11, 1975 and after an apparent recovery returned to his duties as chairman of the Ohio Turnpike Commission and as a member of the Board of Regents.

James White Schocknessy never held a publicly elected post, served in a state cabinet post or sat as a judge. Yet he was a dominating influence on the Ohio political scene during an enigmatic career that began in the postwar era and survived the turbulent 1960s and continued into the present decade.

A Democrat, Schocknessy's power base, indeed his pride and joy for the past 27 years, was the Ohio Turnpike, a highway that he helped keep free of any breath of scandal and which may soon bear his name.

"Jim Schocknessy has given the last quarter century of his life to the building and error-free operation of the turnpike," Gov. James A. Rhodes said in proposing legislation to name the turnpike after him. "It is fitting that we honor the architect of the nation's most successful turnpike by naming this great highway after him."

In a statement this morning, Rhodes said, "It was his genius that created the turnpike, and as chairman, he guided its operation for more than 25 years. At this time of sorrow, it is fitting that action on this request go forward."

Schocknessy, an attorney, was named chairman of the Turnpike Commission in 1949 by Frank Lausche, his "favorite governor."

Tedium, comedy, poignance mark Democrat convention

NEW YORK (AP) — When he was governor of Georgia, he appeared on "What's My Line" and nobody could guess what his line was.

When he was governor of Georgia, his mother asked what he expected to do after leaving the state house and he said:

"Run for president."
"President of what?"
"President of the United States. And I'm going to win."

Today, Jimmy Carter was half way there, while many people in his party were still wondering what his line was.

He reached the half-way point at 11:15 p.m. (EDT), July 14, 1976, in the fourth day of the second week of the third century of the Republic and the 19th month of Jimmy Carter's quest, begun at ground zero.

It went this way Wednesday night, a sequence of events which somehow combined tedium, comedy and poignance....

At opposite ends of the arena, two widows. On the left, Jackie Kennedy Onassis in red. On the right, Ethel Kennedy in pink, with Teddy Kennedy.

The announcement brings a warm, sustained ovation.

Had he lived and won, Bobby Kennedy would be finishing his second term now. Had it not been for Chappaquiddick, Teddy Kennedy might now be....

At 9:10, Carter's name is placed in nomination by Rep. Peter Rodino, unknown beyond the pizza parlors of Newark, N.J., until he became a hero of Watergate. His eloquence goes unattended.

TV Viewing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC, urging viewers to see its abbreviated coverage of the Democratic National Convention, said: "Get to the heart of the convention." CBS and NBC just tried to find the pacemaker.

All three close the Fun City show tonight with live coverage of acceptance speeches, then get set for what no doubt will prove a much livelier story, next month's GOP convention in Kansas City.

Excluding Texas Rep. Barbara Jordan's dramatic closing speech, Monday's opening start-to-finish coverage by CBS and NBC was a sure cure for insomnia, despite valiant efforts by anchors and reporters.

ABC's two-hour tape and live effort wasn't riveting, either. Even its guest commentator, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., had only kind things to say, praising even Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter.

About the only threat of action seemed to come when a CBS man butted in on an NBC interview with vice-presidential hopeful Sen. John Glenn Jr., D-Ohio, early in the evening. But no war ensued then, nor a few minutes later when CBS' Ed Bradley and NBC's Tom Pettit simultaneously sought the views of Carter's wife, as CBS' Dan Rather and NBC's Cassie Mackin lurked in the background, just in case. It was that kind of night.

NBC was the most energetic interview emporium opening night. By my count, it logged 37 interviews, from Glenn to two ad men in charge of political buttons and posters, before the proceedings closed.

For variety, there was a videotape view, shown by all three networks at different times, of Carter in his hotel room, watching the convention on TV and rising to adjust one of three sets — or wake up.

Tuesday night brought a variation of this hotel scene — Carter in a polo shirt, wearing no shoes, working on his acceptance speech.

That night was largely devoted to (a) attempts to see if a report was true that Carter was considering only two possible running mates, down by four from Monday, and (b) a search for an elusive Democratic uproar of some kind.

CBS and NBC each aired Sen. George McGovern's strongly-worded speech complete and live, including the 1972 Democratic standard-bearer's statement that "the enormity and pervasiveness of Watergate crimes were kept under cover until after the election."

But not much of that speech came at the same prime time on ABC. Harry Reasoner and Howard K. Smith used the time to discuss the Democratic platform and hear Goldwater's views on part of it.

They picked up McGovern's speech live only near its end, when McGovern — whom ABC has hired to comment on the GOP convention — was saying, "the American dream remains incomplete."

No American dream is complete without an All-Star baseball game, which ABC carried — showing President Ford throwing out the first ball in Philadelphia as Hubert Humphrey addressed Democrats in New York.

ABC's convention coverage resumed at game's end, near 11 p.m. EDT, the game coverage interrupted but thrice for brief convention reports.

Cincinnati was a boom town when Gen. Arthur St. Clair was there in 1795. Flatboats lined the Ohio River landings, ware houses sprawled on the bank, soldiers and settlers thronged the taverns along with newcomers asking the price of town lots and Miami Valley land.

Reconstruction slow for Xenia

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Some residents of this city ravaged, by a tornado in 1974, are wondering why it is taking so long to replace the downtown area that was destroyed by the storm.

Representatives of five neighborhood associations pressed officials recently to determine if they can help speed the rebuilding process.

For almost five months, Xenia has been negotiating with its preferred developer, Levine Realty Co. of Springfield, and the quasipublic Xenia Community Urban Redevelopment Corp., to finalize what will be built in the commercial section of the 42-acre urban renewal area.

Negotiation sessions have been held secretly, and no parties would specifically say what caused a recent brief impasse.

But they did say it generally had to do with who will be tenants in the shopping center and where buildings will be located.

An announcement of final plans is expected by the end of July.

Meanwhile, the people of Xenia are waiting, with some feeling that time is running out.

The tornado struck the city of 25,000 in the afternoon of April 3, killing 32, injuring 1,600 others and causing an estimated $100 million damage.

Representatives of the neighborhood associations have suggested circulation of a questionnaire to determine what residents want in a downtown.

City Manager Robert Stewart said the urban renewal project was in the hands of the elected officials of the city and he felt the commissioners have an understanding of what people would like and what can be built.

"The questionnaire does not provide realistic choices. The choices are much more complex. You are only holding out dreams and expectations and not what is realistic in today's economy," Stewart said. "Instead of asking what people want, what should be asked is what do people think is possible."

Neighborhood association spokeswoman Audrey Broyles said residents are becoming impatient.

"We trusted our city officials, they were elected to office to do a job. Our welfare and the welfare of the town became their responsibility," she said. "But it has been two years and there is still nothing down there, and without a downtown, our town is going down the drain."

Federal officials who financed the urban renewal efforts are generally more than pleased with Xenia's progress, Stewart said.

"The same criticism we are getting now is similar to criticism that many cities receive when they undertake such a project," Stewart said. "Look at Dayton and Cincinnati. Both had urban renewal projects that have taken several years to complete and yet people expect what we are trying to do here to go so much faster..."

Carey preferred olympics sendoff

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Hugh Carey would rather have attended a sendoff for 177 Olympians than host the Democratic National Convention, Secretary of State Mario Cuomo told the athletes.

"Down there, they're trying to make points not by throwing balls through hoops but by blowing air through microphones," he told 177 American athletes on their way to Montreal.

Dune buggy driver injured

A Tuesday accident in which a dune buggy reportedly struck a tree, culvert, dog, and fence along the Greenfield-Sabina Road, was investigated Tuesday and Wednesday by Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

The driver of the vehicle John R. Van Dyke, 22, of 9008 Cross Road, was thrown from the vehicle in the 5:45 p.m. Tuesday accident, and is currently in "satisfactory" condition in Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

According to sheriff's deputies, the Van Dyke vehicle was eastbound on the Greenfield-Sabina Road, and swerved to avoid striking a dog about a half mile east of the Washington-New Martinsburg Road.

The vehicle reportedly skidded broadside across the roadway before going into a ditch on the left side of the road, striking a tree, spinning around, and then striking a culvert.

The dune buggy, severely damaged in the accident, also struck some fence belonging to Eileen Bueck, Orient. A dog was killed at some point during the vehicle's maneuvers.

Making a turn into an alley on Main Street, Jeffersonville, a car driven by Mabel I. Evans, 58, of Jeffersonville, approached a parked truck belonging to Norman K. Mason, 43, of Waverly. The vehicles reportedly just touched each other and slight damaged was the result of the 4:35 p.m. Wednesday accident. The accident occurred just south of High Street in Jeffersonville.

Ishmael Jaffree, 32, of Cleveland, told sheriff's deputies that as he was traveling in the Day's Inn parking lot, U.S. 35 and I-71, his car struck and slightly damaged a parked tractor trailer rig, whose driver left apparently unaware that the accident had taken place. The accident occurred at 12:30 a.m. Thursday.

POLICE

THURSDAY, 2:38 a.m. — Eastbound on Court Street, a hitskip vehicle reportedly sideswiped and moderately damaged a car parked in front of the Downtown Drug Co. store belonging to Linda K. Meadows, 726 Washington Ave. The license of the hitskip vehicle was identified.

12:30 a.m. — A car belonging to Charles Yates, 317 S. North St., which he claimed was stolen from in front of his home at 12:25 a.m. Thursday, was eastbound on E. Elm Street when it struck a parked car on E. Elm Street, just east of Sycamore Street. The parked car belonged to Lorraine Frye, 403 E. Elm St. Both cars were moderately damaged. Police officers said the drive of the first vehicle fled on foot.

WEDNESDAY, 7:40 p.m. — A car driven by Edward E. Corey, 27, of Robinson Road, was northbound on S. Fayette Street when it allegedly struck a car ahead, also northbound on the street. The second car was driven by Raymond Parks, 713 Sycamore St., and both vehicle were severely damaged.

4 p.m. — Patti L. Everhart, of 613 S. Fayette St., was charged with backing without safety after she reportedly backed from a parking space on N. Main Street, and struck a car proceeding north on Main Street. The second car was driven by Norma Burden, 40, of 408 Van Deman St. The accident occurred just south of Paint Street, and both vehicles were slightly damaged.

British call home Uganda officials

LONDON (AP) — The British government is calling home another high-ranking diplomat from Uganda, leaving only three junior officials to look after the 500 Britons still living in the former British colony in East Africa.

As stress between Britain and President Idi Amin increased over an aged British-Israeli woman missing since the Israeli rescue of 102 other hijacked hostages from Uganda, a deadlock ended the United Nations Security Council debate on the Israeli raid after four days.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli government said it would introduce legislation to bar from Israel airlines with insufficient security against terrorist. Amin demanded the recall of James Horrocks, Britain's acting high commissioner in Uganda, after accusing him of involvement in the Israeli raid on July 4. The British Foreign Office said the charge was "totally untrue" but that he would leave Kampala, the Ugandan capital, in a day or two.

Diplomatic sources said the British government would not take retaliatory action so as not to endanger the Britons in Uganda.

Ohio puts Carter over the top

NEW YORK (AP) — As Ohio pushed Jimmy Carter over the top for the Democratic presidential nomination with a big vote Wednesday night, observers were recalling the 1972 Democratic National Convention, at which Ohio played a very different role.

The 1972 delegation was so disorganized, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., had already been nominated before Ohio could get its vote together.

Frank King, who was president of the AFL-CIO in Ohio at the time, led the delegation four years ago but was unable to get his delegates together behind one candidate.

As a result, King passed on each ballot, and the Ohio delegation became something of a joke for the television commentators as King continually passed his turn until it was too late.

By contrast, Wednesday night, the Ohio delegation immediately cast 132 votes for Carter to give him the 1,505 required for the nomination.

Twenty Ohio votes went to Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and six were pledged to Rep. Louis Stokes of Cleveland's 21st Congressional District as a favorite son candidate.

The vote that put Carter over the top was announced by Christine Gitlin, chairman of the Ohio delegation. It was her loyalty to Carter that led to her resignation as special assistant to Rep. Ronald M. Mottl, D-Ohio.

Though a Democrat, Mottl has considered crossing party lines to support former Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan. Mottl said he could not accept the Democratic position on busing, but said he could support Reagan, who favors a constitutional amendment to forbid busing.

Mrs. Gitlin supports the Carter position, incorporated in the Democratic platform, which accepts busing to achieve desegregation as a last resort.

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. John H. Glenn of Ohio said Wednesday night he still thought he was in contention for the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

Carter wasn't saying which way he was leaning in picking a running mate, but one political source said he thought the list had been narrowed to Walter Mondale of Minnesota or Edmund Muskie of Maine.

Carter denied it. Glenn, 54, spent Wednesday having some dental work done and shopping for clothes on Madison Avenue.

In the evening he watched the convention on television instead of going to Madison Square Garden.

Glenn said again he would not be extremely upset if he were not chosen as the vice presidential candidate.

"The worst thing that can happen is to go back to Washington and to do the best job I can as a U.S. senator, and that's not bad," he said. "If I'm not in it, I'm not going to run away and hide someplace."

Meat inspectors lose their jobs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Seven meat inspectors of the Department of Agriculture lost their jobs in October because the positions were abolished, not because the employees were laid off, the state Personnel Board of Review has ruled.

The board agreed that the state did not have to comply with layoff regulations because the jobs were abolished.

The meat inspectors and board member James E. Hughel contended that the employees were laid off illegally.

Class of 1951 of WHS assembles in Mahan Hall for reunion and Bicentennial celebration

Forty-two of the 97 members of the Class of 1951 of Washington Senior High School gathered in the Mahan Building Saturday, July 10, for the 25th Class Reunion. Including spouses, and guest teachers there were 82 at the get-together, but 90 had made reservations. Greeting them at the entrance were Harold and Ann Thompson, Richard and Janet Blessing and Charles (Buck) Smith.

At the reception table Mrs. Ronald Johnson gave each guest a name tag as he or she signed the guest book; Mrs. Kenneth Kirk gave each one a door prize ticket; Mrs. Robert McArthur gave each couple a small ceramic souvenir bust of George Washington, which was finished to look like pewter with "51-76" painted on the bottom; and Sharon Vincent and Kay Feike gave each couple a booklet containing all the latest address and information known of each classmate. A bicentennial penny was given to each in observance of the 200th birthday.

Members entered under a "Welcome Banner" depicting the 25th reunion done in silver with a life size "1776 drummer" on the left and a "1976 drummer" on the right. All the art work was done by Richard Blessing, who also designed the booklet covers.

The social hour was from 6 until 7 p.m. when all renewed acquaintances and enjoyed punch and cheese snacks (made by Ann Blake) Refreshments were served in shifts by Larry and Mae Johnson, Dana and Martha Kellenberger, Clarence and Barbara White, and Charles and Shirley Harris.

Scrapbooks were on display along with letters and pictures from the previous class reunion in 1971, also pictures of class members and notes from teachers unable to attend.

Richard Hughes, Master of Ceremonies, opened the dinner hour with a welcome and good humor; and Claude Coulter gave the invocation preceding the smorgasbord dinner. President of the Class Sharon (Rettig) Vincent, introduced guest teachers, Mr. Harry Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pensyl, Mr. G.B. Vance, Miss Ruth Stecher and Miss Marjorie Evans. Following the welcome, Mrs. Vincent introduced all of the class officers present; Mrs. Kenneth Kirk, treasurer, and vice president Fred Brandenburg, who gave a brief welcome and some added information on some class members. Class secretary Jane Terrell Thompson was unable to attend. It is the hope that at the next reunion, planned in 10 years, more class members will attend. The Master of Ceremonies read a poem about most of the class being friends since grade school and all through high school and how nice to get together and share old memories. Also a special message that all "take time to smell the roses" as each continues through life.

Decorations were silver covered tables with bicentennial placemats, artificial red, white and blue flowers made by Rhoda Gilmore, centerpiece at the speaker's table by Mari-Lee in red, white and blue dried flower arrangement, with live red rosebuds. Also red candles were on each table.

The bandstand was silver encased in red, white and blue streamers with two large red, white and blue paper balls in the front and back of the stand, with several large starbursts of the same colors.

Hanging mobiles of the three flags, 13 star flag, Flag of '76, and 1976 suspended from the ceiling, also the three flags in plastic were on the punch tables. The "Spirit of '76" prevailed throughout the evening, honoring the old and enjoying the new '76.

The theme was silver for the 25th anniversary and patriotic theme for the 200th anniversary of the nation, which also included the class colors, scarlet and silver, and the school colors of blue and white. The 25th class reunion and the nation's 200th anniversary were very important occasions of the year, and the group was entertained by the Cynda Kated Singers, under the direction of Mrs. Rick Stinson. Selections from the 1950's, current popular songs and a patriotic medley with readings and musical selections topped the evening's program. The singers received a standing ovation.

BRAN WALDORF SALAD is the updated way to add additional fiber to a salad, and it takes only an instant to add wheat bran cereal to this favorite.

Update your salads to provide more food fiber for your diet

To bring your family the health benefits that some medical researchers believe will be theirs by increasing fiber in their diets, try the bran plan. It's easy. You can eat a bowl of wheat bran cereal at breakfast, or include this cereal in recipes, or sprinkle it over dishes you already enjoy.

It's easy to make salads higher in fiber content when you sprinkle them with wheat bran cereal. An example is Bran Waldorf Salad. The wheat bran cereal gives delicious texture contrast — almost a nut-like flavor — and the earthy taste of the good grain with which the cereal is made. Many people are finding that if they put a small bowl of wheat bran cereal on the table, people will help themselves and sprinkle the bran over vegetables, salads, fruits or creamed dishes for the sheer enjoyment of the flavor and the texture crunch. At the same time they are getting more fiber in their diets as some researchers recommend to help keep the digestive system working smoothly and reduce the risk of some common diseases.

Another delightful new food idea in Bran Spinach Salad, well seasoned with herbs, and crunchy with a prepared bran topping that is quickly made. A zingy Mustard Dressing completes this combination of spinach, lettuce, hard-cooked eggs, cherry tomatoes and fresh mushrooms. It's a gourmet salad with everyday enjoyment for the family or for a festive company dinner.

For the conversion from a low-fiber to a higher-fiber diet, keep a box of wheat bran cereal on the shelf. It's an easy way to increase the fiber content of favorite foods and it's in a form that people enjoy.

Problem threatens to grow increasingly severe

Police department manpower shortages eyed

Manpower shortages in the Washington C.H. Police Department are a serious problem which threaten to grow increasingly severe, according to Washington C.H. Police Chief Rodman Scott. Although City Council took action Wednesday night to ease an immediate shortage of police officers, the outlook is grim. Council agreed to grant Ptl. Anthony Wilson assurance that he will be placed in a permanent position on the force when federal funds terminate. Hired under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program, Wilson is eligible to assume a permanent post at the present.

However, if he is moved to fill the present opening, the city will have to pay his salary rather than the federal government. He is to be asked to remain on the CETA payroll with assurance that he will be given credit for all seniority and other benefits.

Jailer-dispatcher Michael Taylor is to be elevated to the position of patrolman, and a vacancy will be left in the dispatcher's post. Council hopes that auxiliary officers will assist in the police department office.

Although the action increases the number of patrolmen, Scott indicated that at least one patrolman, and perhaps two, would leave the department shortly. He did not name the men or give details, but said only that a critical shortage is likely to grow worse by one or two men in the near future.

Again not specifically spelled out, but implied, was that the upcoming resignations are being prompted by low salaries.

City Manager George H. Shapter said he had received a report from the police chief comparing the salaries of Washington C.H. police officers to law-enforcement officers in other areas.

In noting that the Ohio Highway Patrol has much higher pay, Shapter said if he was a qualified young officer in Washington C.H. he'd certainly be seeking a position with the patrol. He added that Columbus police officers can make $14,000 after two years. That is very near the police chief's salary here.

Other items discussed in the city manager's report to Council included: BOWLING ALLEY

A letter from Bill Welsh of Fayette Lanes, Inc., indicated that two city ordinances were blocking construction of a bowling alley on Commercial Avenue, behind McDonald's Restaurant on S. Elm Street. The first is an ancient ordinance which requires all bowling establishments to close from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m., including all day Sunday. The second says no bowling alley can be constructed within 1,000 feet of school grounds.

The city manager said the ordinances dated back to the 1930s, and it seemed reasonable to review them. Council members Ralph Cook and Mrs. Bertha McCullough are to investigate and report their findings to Council at the next meeting.

CITY SPENDING
Shapter reported that as of June 30, the midpoint in the fiscal year, the city had spent 47 per cent of its appropriated monies for 1976. Although some departments were slightly over the half-way point in spending, as yet he saw no serious problems keeping all departments within their budgets.

PARKING TOKENS

The city manager reported that many Washington C.H. residents are apparently hoarding or losing their parking meter tokens. Since the tokens cost more than eight cents apiece, it is a losing business to continue buying tokens for distribution to merchants, he said.

Since any action on the part of City Council would greatly affect area merchants, it was suggested that the Retail Merchants Association of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce have an opportunity to consider the problem and pose possible solutions. Council took no action, but will wait to hear from the merchants.

BUDGET EXTENSION

The Ohio Board of Tax Appeals has extended the date by which the city must submit a tax budget from July 15 to August 20. Shapter sought the extension when passage of House Bill 920 made it impossible to determine how much money each mill of tax will generate for the city.

BARGAIN DAYS

Council approved the closing of Main Street from Court to Market streets at 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 21, and Friday, July 23. There will be square dancing in the street both days.

Council also voted to waive its prohibition against sidewalk sales in the downtown area for the Old Fashioned Bargain Days activities.

DEPARTMENT REPORTS

Shapter reported having received monthly reports from Washington C.H. Fire Chief Joe Denen, Chief Scott and city inspector Glenn Tatman. These reports as well as a six-month report from the city inspector are available in the city building.

COUNCIL VACANCY

A scheduled executive session to discuss candidates for the Council seat to be vacated by Eddie Fisher was postponed when Mrs. Bertha McCullough was unable to attend.

Mrs. McCullough, who has battled illness for several months, attended the Council meeting, but was forced to leave shortly before the meeting was adjourned. The intense heat in the Fraternal Order of Police building, 470 N. Fayette St., was enough to wilt even the healthiest of those in attendance.

Recent high court decision cited

Council member asked to resign

The foremost critic of Washington C.H. City Council in recent months, Mrs. Joanne Allen, 401 E. Elm St., called for the resignation of Washington C.H. City Council member John F. Morris Wednesday night.

Citing an Ohio Supreme Court decision rendered June 23, 1976, Mrs. Allen contends that Morris was elected in violation of a city ordinance which prohibits public employees from holding seats on council.

The supreme court decision apparently deems all teachers paid by public funds as "public employees." The ruling came as a result of a suit filed by the City of Garfield Heights, near Cleveland, against councilman Nadratowski. Garfield Heights has a provision in its city charter prohibiting public employees from holding public office, and the Ohio Supreme Court decision will apparently cost Nadratowski his council seat.

Mrs. Allen claims that Washington C.H. has an ordinance with essentially the same provisions, and Morris cannot legally hold public office in Washington C.H.

City Manager George H. Shapter, who said he had been aware of the ruling and Mrs. Allen's contention for several weeks, made no response to Mrs. Allen's charge.

Council members also made no comment. They appeared to take Mrs. Allen's demand of Morris' immediate resignation rather lightly.

Morris was indifferent and neither commented nor resigned.

OTHERS who spoke during the call to voters and taxpayers were Phil Tatman, 437 Warren Ave., and Homer Penwell, 230 Green St.

Tatman touched upon several topics, most of which dealt with the installation of new sewers in Washington C.H. A long-time opponent of the $23.6 million sewer project, Tatman said the sewage problems could have been corrected at a much lower cost.

He was also opposed to the allowances approved by City Council for those persons who used water which did not enter the sewer system.

Penwell said cars have been traveling the alleys near the Kroger Co. store at a high rate of speed. He asked that stop signs be installed along the gavel alley off Daper Street to slow speeders.

Rubber strike to drag on

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A local United Rubber Workers leader is predicting that the strike against the rubber industry's Big Four—already in its 12th week—will last another month.

That prediction comes from William Jones, president of URW Local 7 at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. plant here.

Another union leader, John Nardella, president of Goodyear Local 2, issued a plea Wednesday for support from other labor groups. Nardella said doubts of observers that the strikers have support outside their own union are contributing to the length of the strike.

Nardella suggested that other unions might provide assistance in meeting the cost of hospitalization insurance payments after the companies reduce payments next Monday.

"One good gesture from united labor might get us out of a bind by shaming our companies," Nardella said.

When the URW struck Firestone, Goodyear, B.F. Goodrich and Uniroyal April 21, the Big Four agreed to extend company-paid medical insurance coverage for 90 days.

Since last January

Nearly 2,300 measures considered in assembly

COLUMBUS — This session of the Ohio General Assembly has been busy, if not as productive as one would have hoped. Since January 1975, nearly 2,300 bills and joint resolutions have been introduced. Of these, 281 House bills and 162 Senate bills were passed and sent to the Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes.

It is a misconception that bills must be acted on by the governor within 10 days after they are passed. He must sign or veto a bill, or let it become law without his signature within 10 days after the governor's office receives the final copy, according to State Rep. Bob McEwen.

While a bill is going through the legislature it is said to be in "engrossed" form. After passage it is reprinted as an act, or "enrolled." If several dozen bills are passed at the end of a legislative session it may take two or three weeks to reprint and proof them. Thus, it may actually be up to a month after final passage that a bill is acted on by the governor.

As this is written, the Governor has vetoed 17 bills and made 86 line-item vetoes on six other bills. Any bill can be vetoed in entirety. Line-item vetoes can be made only on bills that appropriate money, McEwen said.

Six partisan bills from the "Six Day War" in January 1975 were ruled unconstitutional by the Ohio Supreme Court and are stopped from becoming law.

In addition to bills, there are 3 kinds of resolutions used in the Ohio legislature. Joint resolutions can be legislative proposals to change the Ohio Constitution that go on the ballot as state-wide issues, may ratify proposed amendments to the U.S. Constitution (such as the 18 year-old vote or ERA), appoint a special committee, or recognize an outstanding event or achievement.

Concurrent resolutions may do the latter two things, while House or Senate resolutions are usually only commemorative.

Joint resolutions on state or national constitutional amendments require two-thirds approval of both chambers (66 in the House and 22 in the Senate), but otherwise need only a simple majority (50 in the House and 17 in the Senate).

Concurrent resolutions require a simple majority in both chambers, and House and Senate resolutions need a simple majority only in the house of origin. Throughout a session many hundred of them are passed as a matter of course.

Hog production may be speeded

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP) — Hog production may be speeded by breeding gilts earlier than usual. That will be demonstrated at Ohio Swine Day on Sept. 9 at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center swine facility.

The day begins at 9 a.m. with a tour of the facilities. Later in the day, Robert D. Fritschen, a nationally recognized leader on swine housing, will discuss waste management and housing under seasonal conditions.

Also to be viewed by participants will be new methods of feeding sows twice a week rather than once a day.

Prosecution opens kidnap, murder case

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The prosecution opened its case against Herman Lee Moore by telling the jury Wednesday he would show that Dayton civic leader and businessman Lester Eموff already was dead when his family paid $400,000 in ransom money.

Moore, 46, is one of three Dayton men on trial in Summit County Common Pleas Court on charges of kidnaping, aggravated murder and extortion in the slaying last Sept. 23 of the 67-year-old Eموff. The case was moved here from Dayton because of pretrial publicity.

Herbert Jacobson, an assistant Montgomery County prosecutor, said in opening arguments Wednesday he would show that Moore and Willis Leroy, 44, abducted Eموff from the parking lot of a furniture store owned by Eموff.

Jacobson said the two, along with former furniture store worker Alfred Lee Scott, 41, who was picked up later, took their victim to a field, where he was shot to death.

The prosecutor said Eموff was "pleading and begging for his life" as seven bullets "were pumped into him."

The next day, Jacobson told the jury of seven men and five women, Eموff's son, Robert, paid $400,000 ransom, that FBI agents observed Scott pick up the money, then set up surveillance because they thought Eموff was still alive.

Arrests were made and Eموff's body was found Sept. 26, the prosecutor said. Moore's attorney, Richard Dodge, said Scott was assisted by someone who was never arrested and "if the prosecution does not produce this witness, we will."

Dodge did not identify the missing person.

Moore and the others charged with him face a possible death penalty if convicted. Scott and Leroy are to be tried later.

Letters from readers of The Record-Herald

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Several days ago, I asked in a Letter To The Editor if an out-of-town law firm had been engaged to represent the city against the "WCH 5". Today that question was answered. Mr. William Christiansen of the firm Ginger and Christiansen from Columbus has, indeed, been retained. This is the same firm which represented the City of Worthington when Mr. Shapter was City Manager of Worthington. I also asked who had authorized the hiring of out-of-town attorneys and where the money was coming from to pay them. Those two questions have not been answered. However, Mr. Ralston Smith saw fit to defend the actions of the City Manager in that he, the City Manager, has to make decisions rather than let the business of the city come to a stand-still. Mr. Smith has the position of Tax Administrator. That position does not require his defense of the City Manager or, for that matter, any member of Council. Nor does his defense of the City Manager and/or City Council alter the facts or make them any less true. Someone, without benefit of a meeting of Council, made a decision affecting every Citizen of this community, not to mention the affect the payment of out-of-town attorney fees will have on an already seriously weakened city budget. Where will this money come from? I, for one, would much rather have that money applied to turning back on our city's street lights.

Mr. Shapter recommends in his updated city budget, dated June 21, 1976, the estimated amount of $12,752.00 for the office of city solicitor. He had submitted to Council in his January 12, 1976 budget an estimation of $7,498.00 for that office. In 1975, the City Solicitor's office actually spent $5,655.30 to "handle trial costs". Since this addition to the City Budget has been placed in the City Solicitor's Account, does this mean he, the City Solicitor, will be paying Mr. Christiansen now that the City Solicitor has turned over "future litigation" of the "WCH 5" to this Columbus attorney? Why did we have to have an out-of-town attorney in the first place? If our City Solicitor isn't going to do the job he is being paid to do, shouldn't his salary be decreased? Why does the City Manager feel an IN-crease to the office of City Solicitor in the amount of $5,655.30 is necessary for Services NOT Rendered by that office?

Now we not only have a City Manager from Worthington, Sewer Engineers

Bird and Bull from Worthington, a City Council member formerly from Worthington, but we have been blessed with an attorney from a law-firm familiar with Worthington. What's next? The change of our name to Worthington Court House?

Mrs. Joanne N. Allen
401 East Elm Street

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I have before me as I write a copy of the City Manager's Updated City Budget, dated June 21, 1976 which he has submitted to Council. In 1975, Estimated Travel and Transportation Expenses for the Office of City Manager were $349.00. Actual Travel and Transportation Expenses for that Office in 1975 were $347.99, or $1.01 less than estimated. So it is safe to assume the actual travel and transportation expenses for the city manager's office for 1976 will be very close, if not over, the estimated expenses.

Mr. Shapter has recommended for 1976 travel and transportation expenses for his office the amount of $900.00. In Mr. Shapter's budget Detail, General Governmental Services, Account No. 1.0-70-71.1, he breaks those figures down to read: Estimated Expenses, Travel and Transportation, 1976-$250.00—local. (Nothing was estimated or spent in 1975, locally, according to Mr. Shapter's figures). Estimated expense, travel and transportation, 1976—$400.00—non-local. ($267.00 was estimated for non-local travel expenses for 1975, according to Mr. Shapter's figures). Estimated expenses, travel and transportation, 1976—$250.00—registration fees (to register what?) meetings, conferences, schools. ($82.00 under this Sub-Acct. No. 223 was estimated for 1975, according to Mr. Shapter's figures).

On WCHO's "Party Line" a few days ago, when a caller asked about the $900.00 Mr. Shapter has recommended for travel and transportation for his office for 1976, Mr. Shapter implied those figures were mis-interpreted and mis-leading. I submit to Mr. Shapter, figures, if accurately recorded, do not lie. These must be accurate figures since the same figures appear in all copies of the city manager's budget, the original as well as all revisions made since the beginning of the year. The amount of money spoken of here may be small, until you consider the fact that it is an increase of more than 25 per cent over last years budget. Have any of you people received a 250 per cent increase over anything this year?

Mr. Shapter has said he will gladly sit down and explain the Budget to anyone willing to do so, but he will not be badgered by anyone who will take his figures and turn them around to mean something they do not. Again, figures do not lie. No matter how it is explained, the fact remains: A 250 per cent increase in any department for any reason for a City on the verge of bankruptcy is in-excusable and can only be labeled for what it is: irresponsible spending.

I have been accused of 'nit-picking' and 'hasseling' and of being 'too technical'. I have been called a 'council critic' because I have questioned the necessity of Budget Increases such as those mentioned above. Am I critical of City Council and the City Manager? You bet! With figures like that, shouldn't I be? Shouldn't you?

Mrs. Joanne N. Allen
401 East Elm Street

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

After reading in the issue of July 13 of your Record-Herald I saw where the Washington C.H. Board of Education is asking the people of Washington C.H.

for a 2.5 mill levy to help out on a large deficit in school funds.

Then on another page I saw where Mr. Nestor and the school board had awarded the contract for bread and bread products to Wonder Bakeries for the coming year at a savings that to be $15 to $20 a year on these purchases and had reluctantly turned down the bid of the Pennington Bakeries.

The question that comes to mind is how much of this 2.5 mill levy is Wonder paying along with their employees? Pennington Bread has paid taxes in Washington C.H. for 50 years and their employees likewise and have contributed so much to the local school and the different functions. Where would the local board be if the Pennington organization were to pull out of Washington C.H. and take their tax paying help with them? I believe $15 couldn't cover the deficit. Ask Wonder for that kind of help and see what the answer would be.

Harrises, Patty inept auto thieves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five prosecution witnesses have portrayed William and Emily Harris and Patricia Hearst as inept but courteous car thieves, brandishing machine guns and promising to return the autos.

In prosecution testimony at the Harrises' trial Wednesday, the three were characterized as clumsy at crime, leaving a trail of stolen cars and eyewitnesses across Los Angeles as they fled the scene of a May 11, 1974, shooting.

The Harrises are charged with kidnapping, assault and robbery. Miss Hearst, also a defendant in the case, will be tried later.

The star prosecution witness, alleged kidnap victim Thomas Dean Matthews, began on Wednesday to tell the story of his encounter with the three. He was to resume his testimony today.

Each car-theft victim said that Harris announced boldly, "We're from the S.L.A.," the Symbionese Liberation Army, which had kidnaped Miss Hearst Feb. 4, 1974. All said they called police, who arrived minutes after the Harrises and Miss Hearst left. Nevertheless, the fugitives remained at large nearly two more years.

Thomas Patin Jr. remembered the newspaper heiress standing in front of his house on a spring afternoon, holding a machine gun.

"The lady was wearing a black natural wig, very pale and thin in appearance and very quiet," he said. His elderly father, who turned over the keys to his station wagon, said the three frightened him — "I was scared and afraid of getting my stomach blown out to pieces."

But, he said, Harris told him, "Don't worry about the car. We'll drop it off." Then, he said, Harris let him remove the car keys from a key ring and pull an electric grass edger from the back seat.

The Harrises, who did much of their own cross-examination, said they intended only to "borrow," not steal, the cars.

According to testimony, the Patin home was the second stop in a race across the city after Miss Hearst fired shots to rescue the Harrises from a bungled shoplifting attempt. She has said she fired the shots.

The witnesses said the three stopped first a mile from the store, ditched their van and ordered Kenneth Claude Pierre and his sister, Marva Davis, out of their car.

Pierre said he didn't tell Harris his car had a faulty carburetor. A few blocks later it sputtered and died in front of the Patin house.

Later, miles away, the three allegedly traded Patin's car for Matthews' van and took the teen-ager on a ride.

The Harrises demanded earlier Wednesday that Miss Hearst be granted immunity from prosecution so she could testify about certain evidence in their trial, but the prosecutor would not agree to the move.

Miss Hearst, 22, is awaiting sentencing on a San Francisco bank robbery conviction and is undergoing psychiatric tests. She is scheduled to go on trial here July 26 but is likely to ask for a postponement.

The Cincinnati area

Let's tour Ohio series

One of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by the Fayette County Automobile Club for the Record-Herald.

The Queen City of Cincinnati, Ohio, offers so much to see and do while visiting there, that a person could lose all track of time amidst the excitement and entertainment. Be sure to plan enough time to see and hear it all, so nothing is missed.

If traveling south on I-71, a popular stopping-place that you will definitely not want to miss is The Golden Lamb in Lebanon, Ohio. The exact location is US 42, Ohio 48 and 10 minutes, east of I-75, five minutes west of I-71. The Lamb is the oldest hotel in the State and has long become a famous gathering place for its excellence in restaurant dining and superb hotel guest rooms furnished in authentic antiques and once occupied by such notables as Charles Dickens, Henry Clay and 10 U.S. presidents.

When spending the day at Kings Island (7), 23 miles north of Cincinnati at the junction of Kings Mill Road and I-71, prepare to do just that — spend the entire day in this gigantic amusement of laughter and fun for the entire family. If not, there will be an attraction somewhere in the park, that will have slipped by your eyes. Kings Island is divided into six major portions of International Street, Oktoberfest, Rivertown, Coney Island, Lion Country Safari, and the animated, but very real, Land of Hanna-Barbera which is a sheer delight to every child. Gift shops and eating shops lie along the walkways of the park and entertainment acts with singing and dancing perform regularly throughout the day at various locations in the park.

The central area is dominated by a 330-foot replica of the Eiffel Tower, where reaching the top is only an elevator ride away. A late-night feature held regularly through the season is a fireworks display by the large carousel that lights up the sky for about 30 minutes.

If planning to spend the night in the Kings Island area, you might want to make advance reservations with the Kings Island Inn, directly across the road from the park; or if camping is your bag, there are campsites in the area available for use.

Before leaving the magical Kings Island, golfing fans will certainly want to swing by the Jack Nicklaus Golden Bear Golf Courses, built by the pro himself.

Now finding yourself in the lively town of Cincinnati, be sure to carry a checklist of all the points of interest you will want to visit.

For a start, visit the home of Harriet Beecher Stowe's father, Stowe House (11) at 2950 Gilbert Ave. (US 22 and Ohio 3), now a museum of Black history. An admission charge, the house is open 10 to 5 Saturday, Sunday and holidays, June 1 through Sept. 15.

For all the present and future firefighters a stop by the Cincinnati Fire Department Historical Museum (16) at 329 E. 9th at Broadway will be well remembered. Displayed are outstanding exhibits of restored, antique fire apparatus, fire-fighting equipment, photographs and other memories of old. When companies are not responding to an emergency, the museum is open daily 1-4 and 6-9 p.m. Visitors are advised to arrange tours before visiting by calling 241-6700.

One of the finest art collections in town can be seen at the Taft Museum (12) at 316 Pike St. Many of the collections were given to the citizens of Cincinnati by Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft and display such artists' works as Rembrandt, Turner, Goya and Corot. The free exhibit is open weekdays 10 to 5, Sunday and holidays 2 to 5; closed Thanksgiving and Dec. 25.

Traveling back to Gilbert St., you can see many places of interest such as the Cincinnati Museum of Natural History (6) at 1720 Gilbert Ave., with its fine collection of shells, minerals, fossils, mammals and birds. The Cavern features a waterfall and live fish, while the Wilderness Trail displays wild life in their natural habitat. Note: No children under six years of age are admitted to the Cavern. The museum and collector's shop is open Tuesday through Saturday, 9 to 4:30 and Sun. 1 to 5 p.m. Closed Monday, holidays and the first three weeks in September. An admission is charged here also.

A strong Cincinnati attraction is the Art Museum (3) located 1¼ miles northwest off US 22 and Ohio 3 in Eden Park. Here can be seen the great civilizations of the world through its permanent collections of paintings, prints and sculpture, art of Near and Far East, ancient musical instruments and decorative arts and period rooms of the 18th and 19th centuries. Hours are Monday through Saturday 10 to 5, Sunday and holidays 1 to 5; closed Thanksgiving and Dec. 25. Admission charge every day except Saturday.

Probably the highest point of interest when visiting Cincinnati would be Riverfront Coliseum (15) and Riverfront Stadium (14) in downtown Cincinnati. The multi-purpose sports and entertainment facility is air-conditioned and has 16,000 permanent theater-cushioned type seats. With over 200 events a year including rock concerts, ice shows, circuses, college and pro basketball and home of the Cincinnati Stingers World Hockey Association team. The well-known Reds and footballs Bengals rest on an artificial-turf playing field, with indoor parking under the stadium. The stadium seats over 50,000 spectators for these two sports.

At 8th and Plum Streets is the Roman Catholic Church St. Peter in Chains Cathedral (10) which is said to be the oldest cathedral in continuous use west of the Alleghenies. In this Greek Revival architectural setting is a rare bronze crucifix, and a Benvenuto Cellini masterpiece. The cathedral is

Use of McGuffey readers debated

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — The strongest advocates of the time honored McGuffey Readers are divided on whether the system should be returned to modern classrooms in the continuing controversy over teaching methods.

The octogenarian-dominated William Holmes McGuffey Federation, which gathered last weekend at Miami University to revel in the nostalgia of the late educator, had varying views.

"I think all the moral principles suggested in the McGuffey Readers are the same ideals we have need of today, but as for taking the readers and putting them into the schools, well, you would have to change them entirely," said Gilbert Lease. Lease, 66, a farmer and salesman from Greenville, Ohio, repeated as the federation's spelling bee champion at the gathering.

"We just don't send little boys to the wood shed anymore," said Mary Scholl, 84, a retired teacher from Indianapolis, Ind.

Miami is the site of the McGuffey Museum founded to honor the educator who developed the teaching system in the late 19th century while a member of the faculty. The federation was founded in 1935.

"Today you have kids graduating high school who can't spell and can't write," said J. Donald Pollitt, former Marshall University professor and president of the federation. "They would have never gotten out of a McGuffey-taught class like that."

"Teachers taught back in those days," said Ethel Lewis, Bremen, Ohio. She retired from teaching in the early 1930s.

Louisville children take busing in stride

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It's dark as 12-year-old Mark Jump hurries toward his neighborhood school. There, he will join about 30 other youngsters on a yellow school bus which will take them across town.

Mark is white. His new school is in a predominantly black neighborhood.

About the same time, Babbette Norfleet, 12, leaves her home in a housing project on the other side of Louisville. Shortly, she will board a bus for a 25-minute ride through the rolling Kentucky countryside to suburban Middletown.

Babbette is black; Middletown is not. Mark and Babbette are among 22,600 students, half of them black, who participated this past school year in the massive and often wrenching social experiment called forced busing. There were 119,000 students enrolled in the school district.

Their movements were dictated by the federal courts, which found Louisville's school system to be unconstitutionally discriminatory.

Busing is one of the most emotional and controversial experiments in the nation today. It turns law-abiding parents into rock-throwing rebels. It disrupts public budgets. It swings elections.

But what does it do to the kids?

Mark recalls his fear nine months ago when a rock crashed through the window of his school bus, showering the children aboard with broken glass. His friend was cut.

"I was afraid," Mark said. But as time went on, he added, the fear lessened. He now says it's his parents who are frightened, not he.

"I like it here better than my old school. The building's much newer and the teachers aren't so old fashioned," the youngster said.

Interviews with other children on Louisville's buses brought much the same reaction. For most kids, busing is no big deal. There are no traumas, no nightmares, no instant geniuses, no unexplained dunces. Just kids.

Adults are a different matter. One white Middletown student, 8-year-old Kendra Bryant, wrote a letter to the Louisville Courier Journal, saying, "I think busing is good because I've gotten to meet two new friends I would not have met before."

The Bryants received a flood of abusive telephone calls and hate letters as a result of Kendra's letter.

Gwen Bryant, Kendra's mother, said one of the letters was signed by the Ku Klux Klan and another by the National White People's Party. At least one of the callers identified himself as a member of the KKK.

Kendra, unconcerned about the names she was called in the hate mail, said, "You should have seen the writing on those letters. They write worse than first graders."

"What parents don't understand is that we're all the same inside," said 11-year-old Dorris Holloway, a black student at Martin Luther King Jr. Elementary, the same school Mark attended.

"Even if you're red or green or purple, it'll still be the same. You have a heart, a brain, a nose and eyes. You're just a different color outside."

Doris, who expects to be bused outside of King's district to a school in a largely white area this fall, said she looked forward to it as a chance to get to meet new people and "observe how they live."

"Parents should give busing a chance to see if it works. If it's bad, they can do something about it. But if it's going on fine, they should leave it alone."

Doris' best friend, Dianne Guess, 12, is looking forward to what she calls an "adventurous experience."

"Your mother and father will probably tell you that they're (white students) different from you and have different ways, but you should go and see for yourself. Sometimes your mother and father could be wrong."

"The children have adapted much faster than I expected," said Evelyn Ashkenaz, a student counselor at King. "Their problems are the small petty ones of childhood."

"Somebody snatched somebody else's pencil. There may be a quick tussle, but it's all forgotten by three o'clock. But when the child goes home and his parents ask what happened in school, it's all blown out of proportion."

"I have one child, whose mother insisted she resume taking medication (a tranquilizer), the doctor said she no longer needed. The little girl said to me one morning, 'You know Mrs. Ashkenaz, my mother needs the pills, not me.'"

Bernard Minnis, associate superintendent for human relations in the Louisville system, said many of his department's programs are directed toward parents.

"You can't just dismiss the parents and their feelings, that's why we spend a lot of effort on the parents in the community ... not trying to sell desegregation, but trying to curb the overt behavior toward the school and the children.

"We do not deal with preparing people so much for busing itself, but to ease the strain caused by desegregation and busing."

"It's really unfair to ask if these programs are working. Over-all, we could say within our own gut feeling that we've seen change but we can't really point out statistics and say this is so."

"We just know that the people we've worked with aren't out there throwing rocks."

Dr. Kenneth B. Clark, a psychologist and professor emeritus at New York City College, says parents who violently demonstrate against busing, "inflicting their children with their own racial bias ... are examples that tell the detriment of segregated schools."

He compared the need for federal intervention in desegregation with earlier cases requiring federal intervention when parents resisted inoculation of children.

"These parents are the product of segregated schools," Clark said. "They don't even understand what they are inflicting on their children."

Not all Louisville parents are manning the protest lines. At Middletown, where 76 black students were bused in daily from Louisville's inner city, Principal Josephine Trowel says the parents have been an asset.

Mrs. Trowel, a black, said the parents "have leaned over backward" to make the new students and their parents feel welcome.

School officials also believe the chronic truancy of the past year maybe eased next year, too.

In the past school year, about one-third of the 300 white students scheduled to be bused into King were truant. "They just never showed," said Principal William Horan.

Inventories increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Manufacturers marked up a big increase in the amount of raw materials and goods in stock during May, triggering the largest increase in about a year and a half for all business inventories, the government said today.

The increase in inventories was a hopeful sign for the economy, but was muted somewhat by the first drop in business sales in 14 months.

Business cut back sharply on inventories when sales slipped during the recession and has been cautious about rebuilding those inventories since the recovery began. Economists have been counting on faster inventory growth eventually to create new jobs.

The inventory increase overall in May was $1.9 billion, or seven-tenths of 1 per cent, compared to an increase of $1 billion in April. It was the largest jump since the $4-billion climb in December 1974 and brought the level of inventories to $272.5 billion.

REPLACEMENT SCHEDULED — This bridge, spanning Sugar Creek on Ohio 41, south of Washington C.H., is being replaced by the Ohio Department of Transportation.

Traffic will be maintained over the present structure while a new 44-foot wide bridge is being constructed. The photo was taken looking north toward Washington C.H.

Over Sugar Creek on Ohio 41-S

Autumn target date set for bridge replacement

Construction of a new bridge spanning Sugar Creek on Ohio 41-S is expected to be completed this fall.

The 45-year-old bridge is located approximately four miles south of Washington C.H.

John R. Clark, deputy director of the Ohio Department of Transportation district headquarters in Delaware, said the span is one of the more critical bridge structures in the central Ohio area.

The Kokosing Construction Co., of Fredericktown, Ohio, started work on the $151,000 project to replace the old structure two weeks ago.

Traffic will be maintained over the present structure during the construction work. The new bridge will be situated 125 feet to the east of the present span.

The present structure, which was constructed across Sugar Creek in 1931, is considered by Ohio Department of Transportation officials as the fourth most critical bridge in the eight-county Delaware district.

Clark said an average of 2,800 vehicles use the structure daily. Many of them are stone and gravel trucks which haul from the Sugar Creek Stone Quarry, just south of the bridge.

"The existing bridge is in very poor condition," Clark said. The present structure is only 23 feet wide.

The new bridge is to be 44 feet wide and will be constructed with reinforced concrete. The new span will be 201 feet long.

The entire project includes relocating Ohio 41 for about one-half mile, one fourth of a mile on each end of the bridge, according to Clark.

The bridge is presently located in a small valley on a slight curve. Clark said the project will realign the roadway from each side of the hill approaching the bridge.

Clark pointed out that the general contractor submitted a bid which was 17 per cent under the estimated cost of the project which had been figured at $623,000.

Firemen off work in apparent sickout

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP) — Eight firemen in this community of 26,000 left work Wednesday morning after saying members of their families were ill, the city's safety-service director said.

The firemen, members of the Alliance Firefighters Local 480, called the apparent sickout in a protest over the date of implementation of a seven per cent pay raise for firemen, the safety-service director said.

Eight firemen from the next shift were called in to replace the other workers and remained on through the next shift.

Small fries love McDonald's fries.

Why do kids love our french fries so much?

Maybe it's because we only use US #1 Grade potatoes.

Or, perhaps, it's because we always make them in our own secret patented way, so they're always crisp and golden.

But, the most likely reason is because they always, always taste so good.

Which is why they're the favorites of America's kids. From 3 to 73.

There was a time when that kind of thing could cause some inconvenience. Most people receiving Social Security benefits from the government, rely on their check to meet their monthly obligations and a late, lost or stolen check could cause uncomfortable delays.

Not any more with Huntington's new Social Security direct deposit account, your check automatically goes to the bank where it is immediately deposited for you in a free checking or savings account. But better still, once your account is established if a check fails to come in on time or is lost in the mail, we guarantee that amount of money will be deposited to your account just as though we had received it.

School courses teach of life in real world

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — In five years, Pennsylvania high school graduates may be showing employers and colleges a list of skills they've accomplished instead of letter grades.

GE pact approved

NEW YORK (AP) — A three-year contract covering 18,500 employees of General Electric Co. nationwide has been ratified by the independent United Electrical Workers.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, UE president, released balloting results Wednesday which showed that 82 per cent of members who voted favored the pact which was tentatively agreed upon on June 28.

Terms of the UE agreement parallel those of an already ratified contract covering 70,000 other GE workers

The list would be part of their school records. It could show ability to read and write at 12th grade levels and proficiency in balancing a checkbook, computing interest, purchasing in-represented by the International Union of Electrical Workers.

The accords, reached without work stoppages, are expected to increase wages that averaged $202 weekly by 33 per cent, including projected cost-of-living adjustments.

Boris H. Block UE general secretary-treasurer and chief union negotiator, and John R. Baldwin, GE manager of union relations and chief company negotiator, took part in the contract signing later.

surance and completing tax forms.

It's all part of a state government program to prepare pupils for the outside world. Some call it competency-based education and it's catching on, to one degree or another, across the country.

Educators want schools to teach skills rather than just subjects because too many high school graduates lack the skills needed for life's daily decisions, they say.

"Students need to know that if you can't read a newspaper you aren't going to make it in this society," says Pennsylvania's Education Secretary John C. Pittenger. "If you can't fill out a job application you are headed for disaster. If you don't have the computational skills to take out a mortgage, handle a checking account or buy insurance, life is going to be one long headache."

About a dozen districts will be selected this fall to include in their curriculums the survival skills needed in the outside world. The districts also would upgrade teaching of basic reading, writing and math.

Within five years the state will require every school district to incorporate new course material into teaching programs.

Eventually, the decision to award diplomas may depend on pupils' abilities to read and write at acceptable levels, and to competently handle survival skills.

A proposed new school code leaves open the question of making pupil competency in specified areas a graduation requirement.

Rep. Samuel E. Hayes Jr., a member of the House Education Committee, said those who drafted the legislation never intended the section on survival skills to prevent graduation.

State government educators say they favor promoting, evaluating and graduating pupils based on their demonstrated competencies. They feel it's meaningless to continue awarding diplomas just because pupils complete a specified number of English, math and social studies courses.

There's no debate among the drafters and the educators over the need to teach survival skills.

Among the principal boosters of the concept are Pennsylvania school children.

A pupil advisory board that offers the pupil viewpoint to Pittenger said in a committee report:

"There is a growing skepticism over the value of the traditional system. Educators, taxpayers and employers are questioning the value of the high school diploma. It is imperative that we re-evaluate our system and establish new outcomes for education."

The pupils chose a dozen areas where pupils must demonstrate competency to graduate. They added seven life experiences that pupils must participate in before earning a diploma.

The competency areas ranged from traditional reading, writing and mathematics to shopping, swimming, simple electrical repair, politics and the law.

The experiences would involve care of children, participation in sports, exposure to art, speaking to a group, working with a group on a common task, job training and working with foreign languages.

Some competencies would be taught in the traditional classroom. Others would be learned in the community.

The proposed school code asks the state to devise ways of measuring pupil competency. A record would be kept of skills attained by each pupil, thus telling the state, the district and the individual how the new concept was working.

Charles Lohin, principal of McCaskey High School in Lancaster, said the skills list could be an advantage to the pupil.

"I think it's more meaningful for a student to leave the school at a certain level and to an employer or a college and be able to say: 'Here is actually what I can do, here's evidence that I can do it,' as opposed to 'Here is my A or B and you decide what that means.'"

Frank Manchester, state commissioner of basic education, said once school districts meet the minimum requirements, they could tailor competency-based education to their own community needs.

In districts with a strong family and church environment, pupils can learn to balance checkbooks and do comparison shopping from their parents, he said. Where strong family ties are lacking, a teacher might have to take pupils to the supermarket.

The Lancaster School District is already into a competency program.

For example, Maria Morales, a junior at McCaskey High, filled out this year's income tax form for her mother, who only speaks Spanish. She learned how to do it in class.

Patti Leonard, another McCaskey junior, was hired to run rides at an amusement park. She won out over several friends, she said, because she learned in school how to conduct herself during job interviews.

"A lot of kids graduating are just sliding by," Maria said.

Pupils are learning to complete tax forms, balance checkbooks, read insurance policies and fill out job applications, among other skills.

New course material is under development, using a survey of employers and parents who told the district what they expected of graduates.

One of McCaskey's most popular electives is "Practical English." In that class Maria Morales learned to handle her mother's income tax and Patti Leonard discovered what to expect at job interviews.

The teacher, Nancy Shackford, also taught her pupils to plan a family budget. She issues them "paychecks," and has the pupils allocate realistic amounts for rent, utilities, food, spending money, bus fare and savings.

High court voids Rhodes education vetoes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's big school teachers lobby and majority Democrats in the legislature have won a major victory over GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes in the Ohio Supreme Court. But John Hall, chief lobbyist for the 83,000-member Ohio Education Association, said the court's decision Wednesday to nullify Rhodes' seven line item vetoes in last year's school aid bill mostly was a victory for "the kids."

Rhodes' office expressed surprise at the decision, and said the vetoes were applied to carry out a policy of "fiscal responsibility."

By a 7-0 decision, the court ruled that Rhodes is empowered to make line item vetoes in appropriations bills only. Those he applied last Aug. 29 to the so-called "equal yield bill" were void because it does not appropriate money, it added.

One of the items vetoed in the bill, which now becomes law in its entirety, will mean two increases in Ohio's minimum teacher salaries, from $7,900 a year to $8,400 next July 1, and to $8,900 July 1, 1978.

When he vetoed the seven items, Rhodes cited the new minimums as one that would impose additional costs on already overburdened school districts.

The governor said he regarded it as his duty to "insist on fiscal responsibility" from the legislature.

Democrats in the Senate, where they prevail 21-12, voted to override the vetoes there, but their counterparts lacked one vote having the three-fifths majority required in the 99-member House which they control 59-40.

Hall and others said adequate funding was provided in the bill, at least for the first two years of a four-year phase in period established in the equal yield legislation. The legislature must enact another budget bill by mid 1977, and already has accepted the need for additional funding at that time, they said.

The OEA official said that while the OEA was "heavily involved" in the court case through its Akron branch, which filed the action last September, teachers stand to benefit through only one of the seven provisions—the minimum salaries. "The rest is about what happens in the classrooms...the educational program for the kids."

Rhodes was in Youngstown and couldn't be reached, but his executive assistant, Thomas J. Moyer, said the office was "a little surprised, especially that it was a unanimous decision."

The governor's assistant said that while "it is obvious we will have to live with the decision, we feel it was limited to Senate Bill 170." He said that Rhodes' office will continue to examine other bills that mandate the spending of money.

Moyer said it had been felt that the school bill was, in effect, an appropriations measure because "it mandated the spending of money in House Bill 155 (the regular appropriations bill). We thought we had a pretty good legal case."

The court case was filed against Supt. of Public Instruction Martin W. Essex. It sought to compel him and other officials to carry out the provisions of the bill as they stood before the veto.

Rhodes did allow major portions of the comprehensive equal yield school foundation bill to take effect. The legislation was designed to make major changes in the method of distribution of state revenues to schools and to provide that harder efforts be made to assure equality of treatment. The legislature enacted the law last summer after several years of study.

Among other items vetoed were those that require the Department of Taxation to list taxpayers' school districts on state income tax returns and mandate the instruction superintendent to proceed with plans for an urban pilot project to help disadvantaged students.

Other items which had been rejected by Rhodes require school districts to return any savings they realize under the new formula to the state and decrease the existing 28.5-1 pupil-teacher ratios to 25-1 by June 30, 1977.

Wilmington man convicted by jurors on rape charge

After three days of proceedings in Fayette County Common Pleas Court, and a jury deliberation of approximately three hours, a Wilmington man was found guilty of rape.

At 4:50 p.m. Wednesday, George R. Medley, 32, of Wilmington, was convicted of the March 3 rape of a 20-year-old Akron woman on a farm near the Mount Olive Road, just west of Washington C.H.

According to the testimony of two Akron sisters, one of whom was raped by Medley, the Wilmington man gave them a ride to Washington C.H. after they had been hitchhiking along I-71, on their way from Florida to Akron.

The women said Medley offered to procure a motel room for them in Washington C.H., and, after the room was obtained, he refused to leave. Asking to be taken back to the highway to hitchhike, the women got back into the car with Medley who promised to take them back to I-71. He then took them to a farm lane nearby and raped the 20-year old Akron woman. Medley then drove off.

Though the women did not immediately report the incident to the Fayette County Sheriff's Department, they returned from Akron the next day to file a report with sheriff's deputies.

The women, knowing that Medley was a corrections officer at Lebanon Correctional Institute, reportedly identified him from a selection of photographs provided by Fayette County Sheriff's Sgt. William Crooks.

According to one jury member, the deciding factor which enabled a unanimous verdict of guilty was the fact that if Medley's sexual intercourse with the Akron woman was not without consent, why did he then leave them instead of taking them back to the freeway.

The jury members concluded, said the jurist, that Medley's abandonment of the women established enough evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that he was guilty of the charge.

The jurors reached the guilty verdict after affirming the conditions of three legal prerequisites of a rape conviction beyond a reasonable doubt.

After Judge Evelyn W. Coffman read the legal wording of the conditions for a rape conviction and what is legally meant by "sexual conduct," the jurors had to affirm that Medley engaged in sexual conduct with the alleged victim, the victim was not Medley's wife, and the alleged victim was compelled to submit to the sexual conduct by force. Medley's attorneys, Walter S. Huston and Barry D. Isaacs, both of Cincinnati, called four witnesses to the stand on Wednesday, including Medley himself, who testified for an hour and a half.

After the guilty verdict, Judge Coffman ordered Medley to be taken to Lima State Hospital for 30 to 60 days before sentencing, a legal accompaniment to a rape conviction.

Attorney Huston asked that Medley be released on bond, pending his removal to Lima State Hospital, but Judge Coffman ordered the former Lebanon Correctional Institute officer immediately incarcerated in the Fayette County jail.

When Medley returns for sentencing, he may face a maximum of 25 years in the penitentiary for the rape conviction.

Assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Rossmann represented the state of Ohio in the case.

Sagar Dairy, Inc., 750 W. Elm St., has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against AB&B, Inc., Cynthia, Ky., and Scottie Shoppes, Inc., Kingston, Tenn.

JUDGMENT SOUGHT

First National Bank of Washington C.H. has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Energy Advisors, Inc., 133 S. Main St., seeking judgment for $80,047.

The bank says the defendants executed a promissory note in January, 1976 for $54,000. The complaint states that the defendants had offered a 1974 Piper Twin engine aircraft as security and have now defaulted on payment. The firm is seeking a judgment in the full amount of the note plus attorneys fees.

CIVIL SUIT

Peoples National Bank of Greenfield has filed suit in Common Pleas Court against Charles and Patricia Cox of Grove City and Mobile Dairy Bars, Inc., Grove City.

The plaintiff claims that all three defendants jointly executed a note in Nov., 1973 for $34,840 on which $25,063 is still due and which is in default.

The bank further states that the Cox's executed a note in June, 1973 for $38,786 on which $24,466 remains due, and executed a note in October 1975 for $3,839. Both of these notes are claimed due, and the bank seeks foreclosure action on the property owned by the Cox's in Washington C.H.

The bank also wants to take possession of nine trucks and five trailers which it claims the defendant Mobile Dairy Bars, Inc., put up as security for its debt.

Wage disputes idle Ohio workers

By The Associated Press

Wage disputes have idled an estimated 20,000 workers in Ohio primarily in the rubber, aircraft, machine tool, electric and paper industries.

The largest group on strike was reported in the Akron area where an estimated 11,000 United Rubber Workers are in the 12th week of a national strike.

The latest walkout was reported in Cincinnati where 1,640 members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) struck Cincinnati General and Holmes hospitals at the University of Cincinnati.

Federal mediators continued to assist in negotiations between two unions and the General Electric-Evendale plant near Cincinnati which has idled some 4,000 since June 28. The plant produces jet aircraft and marine engines. The walkout involves the International Association of Machinists and the United Auto Workers.

Some 400 IBEW strikers at the GE plant in New Concord, Ohio, ratified a new contract offer Wednesday, company officials said.

At Middletown, about IAM members have been on strike at the Aeronca Co. plant since April 1. A new proposal has been offered, the company said.

Also at Middletown, a strike by the paperworkers union at the Diamond International Corp. involves less than 100.

At Hamilton, Ohio, 478 members of the United Automobile and Agricultural Implement Workers have been on strike since June 4 at the Hamilton Tool Co.

The national International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (IUE) has idled 1,300 at Columbus, 1,500 at Mansfield and about 100 at Newark at White-Westinghouse plants.

The Westinghouse plant at Cincinnati saw 230 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) walk out July 5.

Also in Cincinnati, Teamsters Local 100 called 60 drivers out July 4 at the Convenience Store Distributing Co. which services many stores throughout southwestern Ohio.

Meanwhile, the United Auto Workers continued negotiations at the sprawling General Motors Assembly Division (GMAD) at Norwood, Ohio. A contract covering some 6,000 employees at the plant which produces all of GM's Chevrolet Camaros and Pontiac Firebirds runs out in August.

NEW INVENTION? — Termed a "fluidic device" by inventor Fred Junk, of Washington C.H., this pressurized mechanism is connected to the fuel line and carburetor of Junk's automobile. Though he said the device is not perfect yet, he claims it has the potential to save gas mileage for the average car.

Business news

Man says device saves on water bills

Going to the toilet may become less expensive for Washington C.H. homeowners if they use a new invention being sold and installed by an area resident.

Todd Monroe, 227 W. Kennedy St., is the Washington C.H. distributor for Eco-Flush, a type of flushing mechanism which Monroe claims can save homeowners 25 per cent of their water bills.

According to Monroe, his product will enable almost any type of commode to function either as a urinal or regular toilet. The device is placed in the tank, and when a handle is turned up, two gallons of water wash through the system as in a urinal. If the handle is pulled down, a five-gallon wash flushes away solid wastes.

Based upon Monroe's calculations, if a Washington C.H. family of four operates the device in the appropriate manner, they can save an average of $27 dollars a year on water bills. The device may also serve as a hedge against rising water costs, he added.

The unit is constructed by the 3-B Manufacturing and Supply Co. of Columbus. According to the company brochure, it may be installed within an hour by the average homeowner. Monroe installs the device for an additional fee of $5.

Monroe, who says he hates to sell products door to door, recently became a distributor of the item.

Brakeman named acting president

GRANVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Louis Brakeman, provost of Denison University, has been named acting president.

He will be succeeded by Dr. Robert Good, president-elect, when Good arrives on campus in September to begin the academic year.

Carter aide sees strong economy

NEW YORK (AP) — While the Democrats in convention assembled castigate the economic policy of President Ford, a Jimmy Carter economic adviser believes the current recovery will continue strong for another year or more.

This is the latest report by the forecast team at the Wharton School, which uses a statistical or econometric model of the economy to make its projections. Its most prominent member is Lawrence Klein, a Carter adviser.

Issued on June 11, the forecast seems to indicate that whoever is elected President of the United States this fall should be able to enjoy a fairly strong economy during his first year in office.

Apparently the worst the Wharton team foresees is a rise in the rate of inflation, as earlier declines in food and fuel prices come to an end. But it foresees unemployment falling to 6.1 per cent by the end of 1977.

Since the June jobless rate was 7.5 per cent, the rate projected by the Wharton team would mean the country was at least headed in the direction Carter seeks, which is a jobless rate of less than 5 per cent.

The main difference is that the Wharton team foresees prices rising as the number of jobless decreases, whereas Carter has stated that his goal could be achieved without adding to price pressures.

The over-all Wharton forecast would seem to give more support to the Republicans than to the Democrats, although the computer model used by Klein and his associates apparently is aseptically apolitical.

So much so, in fact, that nowhere in the material released to the news media is there any indication of how presidential economics could affect the findings, when of course they do. Sometimes unintentionally.

Democrats can easily recall, for example, that while President Ford takes credit for the improving state of the economy, he was actively seeking a tax increase at the very time the worst recession since the 1930s was under way.

Looking back it is recognized that perhaps what was needed at the time was the precise opposite, a tax cut, a conclusion to which his chief economic adviser finally steered him in March 1975, at the depth of the recession.

Projections such as those made by the group at Wharton, which is part of the University of Pennsylvania, can also be undermined by changes of policy by the Federal Reserve Board, which controls the money supply.

Many critics of the Fed maintain that in easing or tightening the money supply the Fed operates with a cudgel instead of a scalpel, and that it can kill off a recovery almost at will.

It can do the opposite, too, but the evidence suggests that at the moment the Fed worries more about inflation, about a recovery becoming an unsustainable boom, than it does about downturns and unemployment.

Pact approval seen by Kuhn

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Despite some vocal opposition and a decision to postpone voting on a settlement with the players, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he believes baseball owners will ratify a four-year agreement that would give players freedom of movement.

After meeting for three hours to discuss the package, owners and representatives of the 24 major league clubs unanimously agreed Wednesday to delay a vote on the agreement until next Monday.

A majority of 13 votes is needed for ratification, with at least five from each of the 12-team leagues.

"I would say there was some strong opposition to the agreement, which didn't come as a surprise to me," Kuhn said. "I would say," he added, "that there's sufficient support to ratify."

The vote on the settlement, reached earlier in the week after 13 months of sometimes heated debate between the owners and the union, will be conducted by teletype message.

While details of the settlement have not been disclosed, the main points in the new baseball agreement reportedly include: free agency for players after six years in the majors; a limitation of 12 clubs with which a free agent can deal; draft choices as compensation for lost free agents, and an increase of $1.85 million in the owners' annual benefit plan contribution of $8.3 million.

Also, players under contract who do not sign new uniform player contracts after the agreement is approved will be able to play out their options. These players would become free agents at the end of their current contracts.

Under baseball's old reserve system, players were bound to one team unless they were traded, sold or released. The beginning of the end of the reserve clause came when New York arbitrator Peter Seitz ruled that pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally would play out their options.

Two federal courts upheld that decision, despite arguments by owners that baseball would become embroiled in bidding wars and only the richer teams could sign free agents.

Without being specific, Kuhn said the owners who voiced objections to the settlement were concerned about money. "Some of the clubs just don't feel that the agreement makes economic sense," the commissioner said.

Most of the owners, however, wanted more time to study the specifics of the agreement. The owners' eight-member negotiating unit, the Players Relations Committee, unanimously approved the settlement after the accord was reached with the players on the eve of the All-Star Game.

Charles O. Finley, the Oakland A's owner who has been stung by player movements recently, said he opposes the package.

Pennant races far from cliff-hangers

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

Now that the All-Star Game is out of the way, it would be time to resume the pennant races...if there were any.

Major league baseball's four division races are so one-sided at this point that they make Jimmy Carter's race for the Democratic nomination look like it was a cliff-hanger. Unless some of the front-runners collapse and some of the followers pick up the pace, the second half of the 1976 campaign will have them yawning in the aisles before long.

There will be other events, of course, to stir interest. Will San Diego's Randy Jones win 30 games? Will the New York Mets' Dave Kingman hit 61 home runs? Will the Montreal Expos finish the season?

But without a legitimate pennant race or two, baseball could be bad box office over the second half of the season.

At present, the best record in baseball belongs to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phils, often maligned in the past, have steamed out to a 56-25 mark and a whopping 10-game lead over the formerly mighty Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East. Is the pennant assured or will the 1976 Phils manage a collapse like their 1964 ancestors who dropped 10 straight games over the final two weeks of the season and blew a 6½-game lead?

In the NL West, the world champion Cincinnati Reds are six games ahead of the runnerup Los Angeles Dodgers. The Reds have come through the first half of the season in fine shape despite injuries to second baseman Joe Morgan, catcher Johnny Bench and pitcher Don Gullett. The Reds have started the eight-man lineup that opened the World Series against Boston last October in only 17 games this season, winning 13 of them.

The Reds are 53-33. Last season they were 56-29 at this time.

In the American League, the rebuilt New York Yankees are the only club in the East over .500. They lead the second-place Boston Red Sox by a comfortable 9½ games and, at this point anyway, have nothing to fear but fear itself.

And in the AL West, the Kansas City Royals boast a seven-game lead over the second-place Texas Rangers.

Dodgers passed up hometown slugger

Foster making name for himself

CINCINNATI (AP) — All-Star Game hero George Foster remembers flunking a tryout with his hometown Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It was one of those 'don't call us, we'll call you, deals,'" says Foster. The call never came, so he ended up making long-distance connections for the world champion Cincinnati Reds.

His sudden rise as one of baseball's premier sluggers is the stuff Little Leaguer dreams are made of.

And Foster has a history of making his dreams come true.

"Even though I grew up in Los Angeles, the one thing I wanted to do was play for the San Francisco Giants and be in the same outfield with Willie Mays," said Foster, a 1968 draft choice of the Giants.

That happened too, in his second professional season.

He had met Mays a year earlier. "He was always my idol. The scout who signed me, George Genoveise, took Garry Maddox and I to a Giants game at Dodger Stadium. It was the night Don Drysdale set the all time record for scoreless shutout innings.

"Before the game, he introduced us to Willie and said that Garry and I 'would be playing in the big leagues someday,'" recalled Foster.

The words planted a seed in Foster. A year later, in 1969, he finished the season with the Giants, playing left field next to Mays and rooming with a budding star named Bobby Bonds.

"I knew I wasn't going to be a Willie Mays or a Bobby Bonds, but I thought I was going to be somebody," said Foster, who has propelled himself into the race for Most Valuable Player in the National League.

He leads the league in runs batted in with 72, owns a .327 batting average and has 17 home runs.

The tryout with the Dodgers never got off the ground, he remembers. "I had hurt myself prior just before that. In a tryout you have to really perform to have a chance."

He spent most of 1970 in the minor leagues, then won a spot on the Giants roster in the spring of 1971. "I was playing everyday because Ken Henderson was hurt."

Meanwhile, the Reds, in the midst of a major collapse after making it to the World Series in 1970, were looking for a backup centerfielder behind Bobby Tolan.

"Bobby was a good athlete, but he wasn't a centerfielder," recalls Reds president Bob Howsam. "This was a year before we got Cesar Geronimo."

The trade winds were set in motion when Frank Duffy, a third string shortstop, informed Howsam he would rather be traded than return to the minor leagues.

"We checked around and found the Giants wanted a shortstop and were willing to give up either Charlie Williams or Foster."

Howsam boarded a plane, checked out the two that night with superscout Ray Shore and by the ninth inning decided on Foster, despite "many reports that favored Williams."

The trade came on May 29. Duffy, now with the Cleveland Indians, and Vern Geisbert, an obscure pitcher, went to the Giants for Foster.

News of the trade left Foster disheartened and dejected. "The biggest hurt was that Bobby Bonds and I had become close as brothers," said Foster Wednesday as the Reds readied to resume their push for a fifth National League West title in six years.

After two less-than-impressive seasons with Cincinnati, he found himself back in the minor leagues. But a trip to a hypnotist reinstalled his confidence, says Foster.

"He went to the winter league that year and really found himself," says Howsam.

Vets laugh, rookies grim in training camp

KENT, Ohio (AP) — It was laughs for the veterans and grim reality for the rookies Tuesday at the Cleveland Browns preseason training camp.

For most of the regulars and seasoned backup players, this was the first day in camp and the drudgery of preparing for another season or fighting for a starting job was still a day away.

They came out in game uniforms for the annual ritual of "picture day," smiles fixed on their faces and mischief in their eyes.

Second-year running back Larry

Poole grabbed the microphone, albeit gently, from a television reporter and began to interview teammates.

"This is Larry Pool for Channel 5 from the Cleveland Browns training camp at Kent State University. With me is defensive end Mack Mitchell."

"Tell me, Mack," Poole continued seriously, "the primary question here today is what are your goals for the coming season?"

The towering defensive regular smirked for the unworking camera and said, "My goal is to become a TV personality like you, Poole."

Fifty yards away, veteran wide receiver Steve Holden swooped up a free camera, pointed it at fellow end, Reggie Rucker, and loudly began to imitate the whir of a motorized camera as Rucker went through a series of contortions for the lens.

The photo session ended abruptly and the veterans moved back into the dressing room as the mostly younger players came out to warm up.

Saturday's Olympic opening lingers under political cloud

MONTREAL (AP) — Whose word will be law in Montreal's Olympic Stadium when the Games open Saturday?

"That is our territory," say members of the International Olympic Committee. "We decide what happens there."

But what will the government of Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau do if the IOC defies its wishes and has two Taiwanese yachtsmen parading under the name of the Republic of China?

The U.S. Olympic Committee intervened in the dispute and indicated Wednesday it might withdraw its team from the Games if Taiwan's rights are not respected and the Olympic charter is not honored.

The Americans are "seriously considering withdrawing from the Montreal Olympic Games," said Philip O. Krumm, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The Taiwanese, encouraged by the American stand, dug in their heels and said they would not march in the parade under the Olympic flag instead of their own, one compromise plan suggested by the IOC.

The latest ruling by the IOC is that two Taiwanese yachtsmen, already in this country, march in the opening parade under the banner of the Republic of China.

The yachtsmen, brothers named Lim, got around Canada's entry ban because they have dual nationality and have U.S. passports. They have been training at the Olympic yachting center at Kingston, Ont., for two weeks.

Canada refused to allow the rest of Taiwan's team in because they use the name "The Republic of China," which is offensive to Canada's trading partner, Communist China.

But refusing to let 40 athletes in is a different proposition than ordering two yachtsmen out.

And in Ottawa, a spokesman for Prime Minister Trudeau said "there is not spirit in the prime minister's office" to give in to pressure on the issue.

Julian K. Roosevelt, a U.S. member on the IOC, said, "We cannot force the Canadian government to do anything about the Taiwanese athletes held up in the United States. But we can insist that the two yachtsmen, whose entries have been accepted, are not expelled from Canada."

Legion picks up hitting attack

With district tournament time less than 10 days away, the Washington C.H. American Legion Post 25 baseball team is picking up its hitting attack.

During the last two weeks, the team raised its batting average by over 15 points—.269 to .285—and during that span Post 25 won four of seven games including three league victories.

Mark Fisher still paces the team in hitting with a .360 average. However, infielder Rex Coe took over the hit total lead with 35.

Fisher, Coe, and Allen Conner are the only Post 25 regulars hitting over the .300 mark, but Jeff Elliott is close. The pitcher-first baseman upped his average nearly 80 points during a seven-game span. He hit safely in all but one game cracking out 13 hits in 22 at bats.

Elliott also maintained his team-leading run total. He has crossed the plate 25 times this season.

Conner held on to his team-leading RBI total with 23. He is being pressed by shortstop Tim Cleaver with 22 runs batted in and Fisher with 21 RBIs.

The Court House legion team will resume league action Thursday with Chillicothe Post 757 on the road. Post 25's next home game is Sunday against Hillsboro at the Washington Senior High School baseball diamond.

Field set at Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. — The largest field ever assembled for a Professional Golfers Association tourney, 169 entries, teed off today in the first round of the $300,000 Westchester Classic.

Sponsors of this 10th edition of the Classic, the richest tourney on the trail, might have been hard put to gather a representative field, what with it coming just one week after the British Open and a week prior to the Canadian Open.

But the PGA lists the Westchester as a Designated Tournament, one in which those players who are listed as designated — mainly specific champions of recent years — must participate or face a fine.
